

Dear Minister Upton, Growing up on Sydney's Northern Beaches there were koalas in our backyard. While they are a rare sight nowadays, it is vital that we look after their habitat (and ours) before we lose them all together. We have managed to clean up the harbour and bring back many marine creatures that had vanished due to pollution, let's do the same with land habitats. To lose these wonderful icons would bring eternal shame on all concerned. Please take genuine, useful action to save these habitats.

Sincerely,

Martin Grunseit
