

I have only one suggestion and that is to make absolutely sure when owners, farmers, developers etc are clearing their land(s) that they do not take out Koala habitat trees. It is the rapid disappearance of their food source that is having one of the major effects on the decline of these unique animals. They are totally territorial and must have readily available sources of their one and only food supply.

That is my suggestion.

Sincerely

(Mrs) C.P. Rumble
