

warning

IF POLLUTION of any type is discharged from your workplace, then your employer and/or you are liable for penalties for polluting. Under new environmental laws you can even be fined if you put material in a place where it could cause pollution.

- For more serious incidents, higher penalties can apply. People can even be put in jail for very serious offences.
- If you need help, advice or information about environmental matters, please contact your local Council.
- If you see people dumping in your area, please contact your local Council.
- Remember, everything that runs off your site and into the stormwater drain ends up in the Cooks River.
- It is up to all of us to help bring the Cooks River to life and so we all need to make sure only rain runs down the drain.

- On the spot fines can start at $750 for individuals and $1,500 for companies for industrial pollution.
