

S00172 – Greg Newland

Consider collection of butterflies and moths for private purposes being made exempt from requiring a scientific licence, except for Threatened Species. The Natural Heritage Trust Action Plan for Australian Butterflies states that there is little or no evidence that non-commercial collecting of adult butterflies in Australia has ever been a threat to survival of a species or population. (p-19).