

S00067 – Monica Wangman

I am also concerned that there appear to be over 30 species of frogs that are currently on Companion, A1 & A2 License lists that will be re-classed as Prohibited.

Once a species is listed as Prohibited, I assume it has to be euthanased, if rescued.

I would hope that every native rescued frog would be given the opportunity to survive for example with an experienced qualified and registered person, in a zoo or suitable facility, where possible. I'm sure our FATS members have not realised the possible implications of the species once common and able to be kept may be soon on the Prohibited list.
