I believe a change to the wildlife reform could be of great benefit to all parties involved. If residents had the option of owning an Australian native mammal (for example sugar gliders and possums) people may choose to have a Possum as a pet instead of a cat or dog, thereby potentially reducing the number of cats and dogs in Australia. I think licensing is a good idea to ensure that owners go through appropriate online training/information to ensure that these beautiful animals are well cared for. I am excited by the prospect of this change!!
