Hello there. I am a school child so cannot give you overly scholastic reasons why I object to the proposed rule changes. However I think your proposals are very complicated and the general public has not been given a chance to understand them. I also think it quite unfair that, with the new rules, you will not help beachfront owners if a natural disaster happens but you will fine them lots of money if they try to protect themselves. Is that really the Australian way of doing things? I need to do my math homework so I can't spend a lot of time on this but I would make just one more point. Why have you decided to extend the coastal zone 500m inland? I have been to the beach lots and lots and there is not much beach 500m inland. Politely Yours Owen Stuchbery
