Reports on the Economics of Heritage Conservation

A number of studies have been completed examining the cost/benefits of heritage regulation, examining the private costs of heritage regulation and quantifying the social benefits obtained. Consideration of heritage economics has embraced examination of tourism and heritage places and the concept of valuing heritage as cultural capital. Research which may inform the Inquiry includes:

   Economic analysis to assess respectively
   A) the social/economic cost/benefit for the local community and
   B) the cost/benefit of heritage requirements for the owner.

iv. A comprehensive list of readings and data on heritage and property values as referenced by Heritage WA at: http://www2.heritage.wa.gov.au/f values.html
